

House for an Art Lover

Environment Policy

House for an Art Lover is a unique cultural attraction and venue inspired by Charles Rennie Mackintosh. We recognise that our activities impact on the environment, and we are committed to providing good quality service while also minimising the environmental impact of our activities. A symbol of this commitment is our membership of the Scottish Tourist Board's Green Tourism Business Scheme. This scheme provides accreditation and encouragement for tourism businesses to reduce the environmental impact of their activities. By encouraging sustainable practices it ensures the continued enjoyment of the environment of Scotland for future generations.

Involve and communicate

We will document and communicate our policy to employees and guests. We aim to involve the community in projects at House for an Art Lover and when possible buy products from local suppliers and use traditional crafts and skills in the maintenance of the house.

Minimise and conserve

House for an Art Lover will endeavour to reduce the resources that we consume. We aim by careful monitoring of the products we procure, to reduce waste and increase the amount of products we recycle each year. We also aim to increase our usage of recycled products each year. Furthermore we aim to reduce the amounts of energy we use each year.
